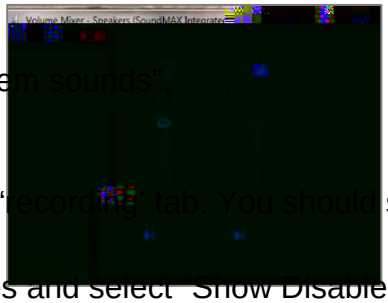
Enabling Califone 3066-USB

Enabling headsets requires a little time and a lot of patience. Computers tend to not recognize and adjust the mic volumes accordingly. The good news is that installation is a software (device driver) process so once the headset is enabled on a computer, any user will have access to using the headset.

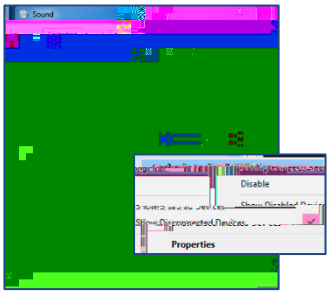
In order to enable the headset and adjust volume, please

2. Click on the volume control in the lower right hand corner or your desktop screen. Click on “mixer”.



3. When the window opens, click on “system sounds”.

3. A new window will open. Choose the “recording” tab. You should see the enabled device for this recording function.
   If you don’t, right click to open devices and select “Show Disabled Devices”.
4. Select the USB microphone and click “configure”.



5. In the next window, choose “Set up microphone”.

6. If not already selected choose “headset microphone”. Click “next”.
